Aims and Scope

WILAYAH: The International Journal of East Asian Studies (formerly known as IJEAS: International Journal of East Asian Studies) aims to provide a platform for exchanges of ideas related to the East Asian region, emphasizing Japan, China, and Korea. It offers informative and insightful multidisciplinary discourse for academics, policymakers, and students alike. The result is a provocative exploration of our time's most pressing East Asian political, economic, and social challenges. WILAYAH is a peer-reviewed publication by the Department of East Asian Studies, Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences, University of Malaya, Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia

Peer-Review Policy

All submitted manuscripts to WILAYAH are subject to initial appraisal by the Editors and, if found suitable for further consideration, to blind peer review by at least a single independent, anonymous expert in the field. The review's recommendations are taken into consideration by the Editors in arriving at publication and revision decisions. Comments and feedback from the external reviewers are sent to the authors, and they are notified of the journal's decision (accept, accept with revisions, reject). The entire review process will anywhere between 3 and 5 months after the submission of the manuscript. Throughout the process, all communications, review reports, and decisions are always treated confidentially. The Editors' decision is final. All new submissions to the WILAYAH are automatically screened using Turnitin within the editorial system. Editors may also choose to run a similarity report at any other point during the review process or post-publication. The default similarity report view (inside Turnitin) gives the percentage of the manuscript's text, which has overlap with one or more published articles.

Journal Distribution and Open Access Policy

The electronic version of the journal is available online (ijeas.um.edu.my). WILAYAH endorses the principle that making research freely available to the public supports a greater global exchange of knowledge. The Public Knowledge Project (PKP), which has designed our journal system to improve the quality of research, is committed to supporting the open access publishing of scholarly resources. Authors must agree with this open access policy which enables unrestricted access and reuse of all published articles. The articles are published under the Creative Commons copyright license policy CC-BY (Open Access Policy). For printed (hardcopy) subscriptions, please contact the Managing Editors.
